FIFTH COPY

TYPE FAST · TYPE FIRST

A typing race set in a toy-sized Soviet ministry, 1978. It is printed in red ink on cream paper, and everyone in the room types the same message.

01 THE IDEA

One message arrives. Thirty typists copy it at the same time. Whoever finishes their copy first wins the medal.

TOY-SIZED BUREAUCRACY

Big heads, mitten hands, oversized caps. The system is enormous and the people are small and funny. It is never grim.

PRINTED, NOT GLOWING

Flat ink on paper, slight misregistration, halftone grain. Light comes from the room, not from the UI. Glow lives only inside tubes and CRTs.

RED IS THE SYSTEM

Red marks authority, urgency and you. Ribbon violet marks rivals and text still to type: everything that is not yours yet.

Period details stay: papirosa smoke, ashtrays, vodka on the Major's desk, war-scare headlines. They are historical set dressing, not gags. The tone is a deadpan cartoon of office life.

NIGHT

Dark theme, "Night shift": Paper becomes #1E1B2E (carbon night) and Newsprint becomes #2B2740. The reds and gold stay the same, and ink becomes Paper. Same rules, inverted ground.

86

Tube colours (phosphor #5CFF8A, nixie #FF9A3C) appear only inside physical devices: CRTs, nixie counters, indicator bulbs. Never on UI panels.

04 3D RENDER · POV & HIGH VIEW

POV Your seat

Framing. Seated eye height, 62° FOV. The Major sits dead centre across the ring, your red sleeves in the bottom corners.

3D vs HTML. Room, typists, officer and typewriter body are WebGL. Telex strip, sheet, keys and counters are an HTML layer, so text stays sharp.

Race lines. Top-left docket: the whole field on one line (you in red), lanes for top 3 and the 2 around you. OVERTAKE / PASSED stamps on every change. Each rival has a muted colour + marker shape + desk number, repeated on their 3D placard and scarf.

HIGH VIEW The Ring

Layout. 30 desks in one ring, all facing in, the Major on a turning platform at the centre. Bigger lobbies add raised tiers behind the ring.

Colour blocking. Grey everywhere: dirty concrete, grey-green walls, grimy wainscot, dull steel. The only red in 3D is the flags.

Use. Projector and spectator camera. Slow orbit; rank plaques float above heads.

05 3D RENDER · SMALL LOBBIES

2 PLAYERS · YOUR SEAT

2 PLAYERS · OVERVIEW (90°)

4 PLAYERS · YOUR SEAT

4 PLAYERS · OVERVIEW (EVEN)

Each seat is staged for its owner. Up to 13 players, every client re-seats the rivals across the room, left and right of the Major and never behind him, so you always see all of them.

Overview tells the truth. Projector and spectators see even spacing (2 players: 90° apart). The camera is offset so no desk hides behind the Major.

FOV grows with the lobby. The POV widens (62° → 100°) until every rival fits. Above 13, the real ring is used and the FOV opens toward 84°. Race card: all lanes up to 8, then top 3 + the 2 around you.

LIGHT A dim, cool backroom with one dirty bulb over the Major that hums and stutters off at random. Dark but always readable, fog past the ring.	SHADING Flat Lambert, slightly chalky, like painted wood toys. No glossy PBR except on brass and glass.	PROPS Typewriters, ink stamps, ashtrays, samovar, vodka + shot glasses, CRTs, filing cabinets, portrait frame.	BUDGET ~50-75k tris, ~190-320 draw calls today. Target: instanced typists, ≤ 60 calls.

ICON · FC MONOGRAM

Wordmark. "FIFTH" in stencil, "COPY" knocked out of a bar slanting up at 8°. The bar is always the second colour: red on paper and night, ink on red.

 Fifth Copy · Race

Rules. Tagline only when there's room. Never recolour the bar violet or gold, never straighten it, and keep clear space of one bar height around the mark.
